ICE Directive on Student Visas

On July 6, 2020, the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) issued a directive on student visas that would compel international students to leave the United States if their coursework were entirely online.

Reactions against the proposed rule were broad, swift, and strong. Within two days, Harvard and MIT filed suit to block the rule. By July 13, 59 colleges and universities filed amicus briefs to back the appeal for injunction. United Chinese Americans (UCA) also filed an amicus brief in support.

A federal judge in Boston announced on July 14 that the Trump administration has rescinded its policy. However, there are still reports that the White House may bring back the rule or apply the rule to new students instead of existing students.
